6.3.1. General legislation

In general, supervisory authorities are subject to stricter conditions for sale from the yard than for crop products. This is logically due to the nature of animal products, their limited shelf life and the greater risk of transmission of parasites and diseases to humans.

In the Czech Republic, in accordance with Nationwide rural networks, Váňa et al. (2018) outlines general schemes of obligations for processors of meat, milk, eggs. These are, with minor modifications, also applicable to other EU countries.
